About This Game

2D space side scrolling shoot'em up: retro style and modern tech.

AI is good, enemy ships are not passive targets, they are smart and dangerous. They will shoot not where you are, but where you will be if you keep moving. So you will have to maneuver. They will dodge your missiles, will hide behind asteroids, will maneuver to approach you from a tactically reasonable angle.

The variety of enemies is wide, there are 25 different enemy ships. Not just differently looking, they use unique weapons and tactics.

There are RPG elements, you can upgrade your ship the way you like.

There are 10 different weapons your ship can carry. Five of them can only be picked up in the battle. Other five can be purchased and upgraded in the armory. The ship can carry up to three different weapons simultaneously.

The game follows a dramatic story of the pilot character. You don't just beat the enemies, you are involved in the intergalactic intrigues.

The game is 2D, but all ships are 3D models, so the light realistically shines on their armor plates, reflecting the light of dying stars.

Enemy ships aren't an "if I touch you you die" type. They are physics objects, that you can collide with, slightly damaging both parties.

There's a tough boss in the end of each level, and you will have to devise a new smart strategy to beat each of those.

The good old school space atmosphere and dynamical battles will excite both aesthetics and gameplay lovers.

14 emotinal, dramatic retro sounding electronic music tracks will fondle your ears.

English

"You destroyed the wrong guy!"
"You mean Wrong? The right guy?"
"No! That ship wasn't Wrong!"
"Wait, I don't get it... Oh, -- this. Now I do get, what the pirates meant under their ship's name."
"Anyway, the Wrongs captain tricked us. Now he is after you."
"Damn! I was just about to move to vacations!"
"You go, it is ok."
"Come with me, baby!"
"Oh, please, Billy! We discussed this already!"
"/ "[sighs]
"Just shoot the pirate if he attack you. And upgrade your ship before you leave!"
